

David Giles

David is passionate about people and their potential. He has led and facilitated experiential learning and personal development programmes in many of the remotest and challenging environments across six continents. He has worked with a variety of clients from school leavers, graduates to company directors in cross-cultural settings both indoors, outdoors and if absolutely necessary - over the phone.

David brings together his own personal leadership experiences from the corporate, charity and NGO sectors having worked with QVC The Shopping Channel, Selfridges & Co and Raleigh International Trust as a Country Director based overseas and most recently as Director of Operations.

He is commercially aware and accustomed to balancing the needs of individuals, teams and organisations. David is always curious and he is driven by motivating others and inspiring personal accountability. His approach is facilitative and supportive but remains challenging and he will not shy away from difficult conversations or direct feedback where this is desired and appropriate.

David's other passion is the outdoors and when not working he can be found anywhere where there is nature and space away from the crowds - either out for a long walk, a run or an adventure of some kind!
